

On the 12th of November 2025, The Tissue Viability Team in NHS Grampian has organised a full day event at the Beach Ballroom in Aberdeen, Scotland, open to all staff members of NHS Grampian.

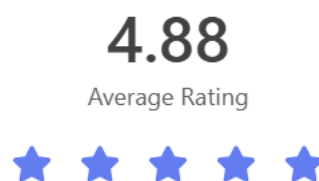

With industry support, we were able to educate and empower just over 200 staff members, from healthcare support workers, nursing students, midwives, acute and primary setting nurses and allied health professionals. We were honoured to have senior management leaders present so that they can see how multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary team work can lead to positive outcomes for patients and carers, when it comes to Pressure Ulcer prevention and Management.

We had oral presentations on the main stage, by tissue viability, podiatry, incontinence team as examples, and we also had designated time for staff to see and receive information about the current formulary products as the companies that supply the products were present with stalls.

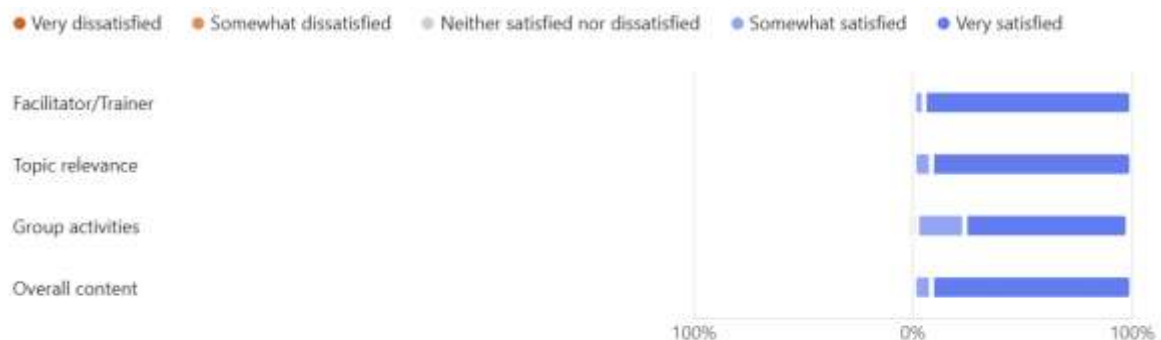

This year we also decided to have our own stall as we have identified that staff might not be aware of latest guidelines and pathways and as we provide support mostly via an e-clinic, it was also an opportunity for staff to meet us and provide feedback on our services.

We collected feedback via a QR code and the results were very positive (we received 59 responses):

Overall, how satisfied are you with the event?

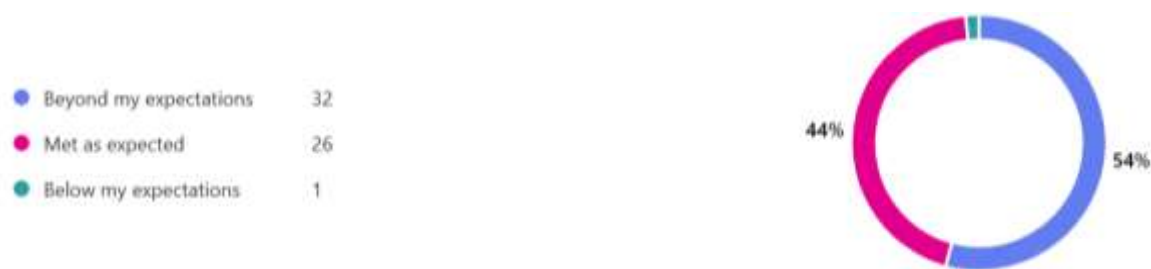

How satisfied are you with the following aspects of the event?

How likely are you to recommend the event to a friend or colleague?

Were your expectations of the event met?
